

Two Players Who Have Helped in Penn Brace

YELLOW JACKETS ARE CHAMPIONS

Spiders Lack Punch.

As in previous games, the Spiders lacked the punch; they failed when en started like a thousand-ton steam roller and finished a disorganized mass, through which Randolph-Macon plowed at will. The very fact that three touchdowns were made in fifteen minutes, while only one could be registered in the previous forty-five minutes, tells graphically the story of the decreasing defense.

Forward passes were the rule. The one touchdown which Richmond College scored came after a pass from Berger to Perkins, which drew fifteen yards. So many passes were attempted by the locals and failed that we were lost in a maze of incomplete forward passes.

Randolph-Macon can attribute each of the four touchdowns made to forward passes, two of these being hurled by Richmond, but intercepted by the Yellow Jackets, and turned into substantial gains. In the third quarter, with the oval on the Lemon and Black line, a forward pass was attempted by Richmond, but Sheffield caught the ball. That was the last hope for the Spiders. After that Randolph-Macon ran amuck and tore into the line with fendish force. During the entire game just one forward pass was muffed by the visitors.

Neither team can complain from lack of support. The student bodies were out in force. On the north side of the enclosure sat the Lemon and Black with a brass band. On the south side Richmond College was represented also with a band. The five-yard line, a forward pass was attempted by Richmond, but Sheffield caught the ball. That was the last hope for the Spiders. After that Randolph-Macon ran amuck and tore into the line with fendish force. During the entire game just one forward pass was muffed by the visitors.

Weight is a Factor. It is interesting to note that Richmond College's heavier backs made their most substantial gains through Randolph-Macon's lighter line, while Randolph-Macon's light backs circled the ends with brazen daring. This end rugging, coupled with Bane's beautiful pass, won the game. The line plunging told on the Spiders, and they were not fit to go the full route. Another disadvantage was the fact that the Spiders seemingly lacked suitable substitutes to send in at the proper moment, while Richmond, realizing the importance of this, had practically two teams ready to do battle.

There were many tactical errors, but none so glaring as that made by Dunlop. After Berger was injured, it was found that the lad was fit to go back later in the game. Dunlop evidently forgot the rules in the excitement, for instead of shooting Berger in at the beginning of the fourth period, he waited until play had begun, sending the boy on the field, and causing a penalty to be incurred, and on his four-yard line. The natural conclusion is that during the first three periods the Spiders were playing beyond their speed and were unable to stand the strain, while Richmond's team, better coached unquestionably and knowing more football under the generalship of the experienced Bane, was bound to assert itself.

Of the stars there are plenty. Dural, for the Red and Blue, and Reilly, with Berger, while he lasted, did sterling work. The ends, Newton and O'Neill, at times showed flashes of brilliancy, but stood stupefied on the forward passes. Saunders, who finished the game at Newton's end, showed improvement over his predecessor. George continued his steady, reliable passing, and was a match for Woodhouse and Legge. On the side of the Yellow Jackets, Bane and Sheffield produced the spectacular, with Hopkins the main source of strength. That fellow is some football player, and will be heard from with the big ones unless he quits the game. Randolph-Macon presented a good pair of ends, both when Scott and Vaughan were looking after the outer posts and when Gayle supplanted Scott.

Yellow Jackets Win Toss. Randolph-Macon won the toss and chose to defend the east goal, the wind being from the east. Berger's first kick was out of bounds, and he made the second try. Bane, standing on his fifteen-yard-line, received the kick, and ran back fifteen yards, being followed by Reilly. The quarter-back, evidently satisfied with what he could do, carried the ball for the first three tries, losing the first time, but getting first down on the second and six yards on the third. In the meantime, Randolph-Macon had been penalized twenty yards for holding. Failing to make headway, Bane kicked outside, the ball going twenty yards.

Berger, on a delayed pass, was able to attach four yards, but his next try failed. A free fumble followed, and Richmond College recovered the ball. Two forward passes in succession fell to the ground. Berger was able to go but one yard, and then he punted. His kick was low and returned with it. Hopkins' punts at the right side of the line failed. Turner, at right tackle for Randolph-Macon, was hurt and retired, Woodhouse shifting into the tackle, and Legge going to center. Reilly spilled Bane without gain. Richmond was penalized for over-anxiety, O'Neill being outside.

Pitt managed to annex eight yards, and Hopkins made two more for first down following with six more, all on off-tackle bucks. Pitt failed and followed by making ten yards for another first down. In two successive smashes, one to the left side and the other to the right side of the line, Sheffield annexed another first down. Bane was out for three yards through center, Reilly skinned Newton's end for two yards, and Hopkins produced three more. With the all on the Spiders' four-yard line they held like adamant, and on four tries Randolph-Macon was unable to gain, the ball going over. Berger took forty yards to go, but they tore off six yards, Richmond College was penalized twenty yards for holding, after which Perkins punted, Bane signaling for a fair catch. Bane tried a goal from placement, but missed, Richmond College bringing the leather out to the twenty-yard line for scrimmage.

McDowell Misses Field Goal. A try at five yards failed. Reilly then got five yards. A forward pass was incomplete. Richmond College tried to punt, but Sheffield broke through and blocked the attempt. Bane ran the end for six yards, but Randolph-Macon followed with a fumble. Dural driving on the leather, Coburn advanced one yard. A forward pass from Perkins to O'Neill, got eight yards. Coburn added ten yards on that delayed pass. Trying the next try, Coburn failed to gain, but they got one and then made it first down, both through the line. Bane intercepted a forward pass, and going through the entire college team made forty yards. On the line-up Hopkins got two yards. The next play resulted in no gain. Dural, of Hampden-Sidney fame, the youngster who sent the ball between the goal posts on that occasion for a dropkick which scored the winning points for the Yellow Jackets, was sent in to do the trick once more. On the fifteen-yard line, with a fair chance and the wind with him, he missed, and Richmond College brought the leather out to the twenty-yard line for scrimmage.

A forward pass fizzled. Coburn got three yards and then went first down. Another forward pass was fumbled. Reilly got two yards and Coburn three. Perkins kicked twenty-five yards outside. A forward pass attempted cost eight yards. Bane got seven yards, and he then kicked forty-five yards, the best punt of the game to Perkins. Gayle making a perfect tackle. A forward pass, Perkins to O'Neill, got six yards. Coburn then carried the ball to within one inch of first down. Period over, ball on Richmond College's twenty-five-yard line, third down and one inch to go.

That Being Touchdown. On the line-up, Reilly made it first down. Coburn failed to gain. Reilly got one yard. For holding Richmond College was penalized twenty yards. A forward pass failed. College kicked to Bane, who was fumbled without returning a single yard. Hopkins nailed five yards. A dandy forward pass from Bane to Gayle plucked thirty yards from the chalkmarks. Hopkins took the ball to the four-yard line, and Dunlop, hoping to save his charges, tried to send Berger back in the game. The rules specifically state that any player who has been in the game can be returned only once, and then at the beginning of a period. The penalty for violation being fifteen yards. Referee Miles divided the distance to the goal for the penalty, placing the ball on the two-yard line, when Hopkins made the plunge for a touchdown. Bane kicked goal. Score: Randolph-Macon, 14; Richmond College, 7.

Reilly kicked to Copley on his forty-yard line, and he fell on the ball. Gayle made one yard, Hopkins one, and then five. Bane punted to Perkins, who ran back five yards. A forward pass

Journal, by his star all-around work, was largely responsible for the Penn victory over the Indians last Saturday. The tall right end is now playing at his reputation. Simpson's work at center has done a lot to brace the Red and Blue line, which in the Michigan and Indian games, disclosed a strength that was lacking in the early part of the year.

The fast quarter back returned ten yards. Bane and Hopkins made first down, both on off-tackle bucks. Bane lost three yards. Berger driving him to the side lines and tackling. Sheffield failed to gain, but a forward pass from Bane to Gayle brought thirty-five yards. Bane got eight yards and was thrown on the next play for a six-yard loss. An incomplete forward pass ended the half with the ball on Richmond College's twenty-five-yard line in Randolph-Macon's possession.

Second Half Begins Tie. Berger began the second half by kicking to Hopkins, who ran back fifteen yards. Bane failed to gain, but a forward pass on the next play from Bane to Gayle was good for eight yards. Bane then made first down. Gayle got two yards, and a forward pass from Bane to Scott, who had returned to Gayle's end, took the ball to the ten-yard line, where Hopkins was shot across for the tying touchdown, after which Bane kicked goal.

Berger, the mainstay of the college, was taken from the game injured and substituted. On the kick-off, Reilly fumbled, and Reilly recovered the ball for Richmond on Ashland's twenty-five-yard line. Coburn got nine yards off tackle. Reilly made it first down. Reilly got four more and Coburn pulled off two, being stopped on the next play with one yard. On a forward pass attempted by Perkins, Sheffield intercepted behind the goal line, and Reilly broke through the line for thirty-eight yards, and Perkins ran back fifteen yards. Coburn got four yards on the favorite delayed pass. Randolph-Macon, holding, was penalized twenty yards. A forward pass was caught by Sheffield. Bane unable to gain on two tries, kicked on the third down, outside. Coburn failed to gain, but they tore off six yards. Richmond College was penalized twenty yards for holding, after which Perkins punted, Bane signaling for a fair catch. Bane tried a goal from placement, but missed, Richmond College bringing the leather out to the twenty-yard line for scrimmage.

Down the Alleys

BY McF.

The Newport Tenpin League passed successfully through its second week, and everything points to a most interesting series. The only drawback to the past week's games was the fact that some of the best men on the Remington Typewriter team failed to appear, necessitating that team reuniting from the grandstand. The result was that they lost all three games to the Alcoa team. It is announced on good authority that this team will be reorganized and will appear with quite a different line-up in the coming week.

Cook Printing Company ran into a snag last week when they Richmond to lower the colors of the team. They considered the weak member was by the league began, but after fighting through two series, winning two out of three each week, and putting up the best average of any team in the league, and placing themselves on a par for first place, are in a position to command respect.

To the writer it begins to look more and more like the teams were about as evenly balanced as it is possible to get them. With the natural improvement that is bound to come through practice, there is no reason why some record breaking team scores are not made this season.
